Quotations from the Endorsed Candidates

Dwayne Collins:

I feel that the College needs some guidance to stay the course. I don't have grand visions for dramatic change. I want to represent the public interest. The quality of the faculty and staff is outstanding, and I want to make sure that that quality is maintained. I'm an A and M graduate, and you know how Aggies are. I can honestly say that I am as impressed by and enthusiastic about NHCC as I am about my alma mater.

Diana Morales Taylor:

With education being one of our most important social issues, I am committed to continue to work for the advancement of NHCC. I have been involved with the College in various roles, including continuing education, the Business and Industry Council, and the Board of the College's Women's Center. The roles have acquainted me with the College and the quality of education it is providing. I feel that my personal ability will be an asset to the Board.

C. Elmer Beckendorf:

NHCC is a relative new school now in its sixteenth year. The College, with its strong administrative staff and well-qualified faculty and personnel, have been aggressive in developing programs to meet the needs of the College District. My hope is that the momentum will continue and that every person living in the District will have the opportunity to benefit from the College in some way, whether it be college transfer and general education courses, occupational/technological training, or continuing education.

Sixty-eight percent of those who receive baccalaureates in Texas have attended community or junior colleges. There seems to be a changing trend for high school graduates to attend the first two years of college near home. This, I feel, will continue due to the increased cost of attending college away from home and the high quality of education offered by community colleges. It is very important for our College to provide the best possible education to the people we serve. I would like to see the College continue to strive for excellence in all areas, I am very excited about the opportunity to serve as an NHCC trustee.
